Allied Might—And Unity—To Impress Berlin

THE BIG THREE STAGE A VICTORY PARADE

From OUR DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT

(Exclusive)

BERLIN has felt the weight of Allied air might. Now the population of the battered German capital is to see Allied armies parading in all their victorious strength, providing a splendid background of Allied unity for the Big Three conference.

Crack formations of American, British and Russian regiments—tanks, guns and infantry—will march proudly through the ruins of the Reich capital to the accompaniment of Allied fighter planes roaring unchallenged over the city.

50 Per Cent. Above Pre-War Value

House Prices
To Be Fixed

SPECIAL TO "THE PEOPLE"

THE Great House Ramp is soon to be stopped. Prices at which houses can be sold are likely to be fixed at 50 per cent. above 1939 figures, and people who have been taking advantage of the shortage to get tremendous prices may be forced to hand back their surpluses.

These steps will be taken following the issue of a report by a Government committee set up to consider the desirability of controlling house-selling prices and to recommend methods of doing so.

The report is likely to be issued around a date from which the sales of houses are to be controlled.

A Bill would be passed through Parliament later, including a clause to make its action retrospective to the date announced.

Principal recommendations of the committee will probably be to control the price of houses at 50 per cent. above the 1939 figure. If this figure is accepted a house bought before the war for £1,000 could not be sold for more than £1,500.

Anyone who has bought a house at more than 50 per cent. above the 1939 figure will be entitled to recover from the seller the amount overcharged.

If the committee's suggestions are adopted, the profiteers will receive millions of pounds from people who have been forced to pay ridiculous prices for houses.

150 PER CENT. UP
"Anything up to 150 per cent. above the pre-war value" is now being asked for early shipment of the manager of one large firm of house agents in the London district told me last week.

Here are some of the prices at which houses have been changing hands all over the country:

Northumberland: House bought for £250 in 1939, now £425.
Kent: £1,800 paid for a £250 house.

Constantine
Cricket
With The Lid Off

NEXT Sunday "The People" begins publication of one of the great cricket stories ever told. It is by Lord Constantine, forgetful and fascinating story of the West Indies, and one of the greatest personalities in the cricket world in recent years.

Constantine's cricket punches with his pen as well as his bat. He writes as vividly as he plays. Here is cricket with the lid off—the high lights of hurricane hitting, of Test match drama and secrets, of behind-the-scenes, of "shameless" cricket.

This series will make history as the most outspoken story ever written about cricket and cricketers. It is packed with thrills. It tells for the first time of events, pleasant and unpleasant, that have gone behind the scenes of the game.

To make sure of enjoying every word of this series, write to us now and we will send you a copy of "The People" with your newsagent.

Shocked Swiss
Say Edda Must Go

EDDA CIANO, Mussolini's daughter and wife of the Italian Foreign Minister, is to be asked to leave Switzerland, the newspapers are demanding her immediate expulsion from the country.

Lake Geneva. She is said to have been seen at the window at the end of the nearby village of Monbey.

Her mother, Dr. Andrea Repetti, at a Press conference did not deny the reports of her night escapades, but said she was in need of treatment for nervous depression. A Reuters cable from Zurich adds.

Secret Food
Stores Brought Out

FOLLOWING the recent statement by the Chief Minister of Food, that the food stores of this country are now to be drawn on, the nation's rationing is to be made more strict.

At Birmingham, a start has been made on removing stores of four thousand tons of food and other goods from the city.

Tokyo 'Offers To Yield Her Empire'
Landing Barges
Coming, Say Japs

TOKYO war chiefs yesterday sounded a new invasion warning. The Allies, they reported, have suddenly begun to mass fully laden cargo ships and landing-barges among the islands about 350 miles southwest of the Japanese mainland.

"The number of enemy surface vessels at bases in the south of the Japanese Islands has increased considerably," said Tokyo radio.

Another Jap report said that Superforts had landed sea lanes off the west coast of the "sacred air base" of Kyushu and in the straits between the Japanese home islands of Kyushu and Honshu.

Meanwhile a report from Stockholm, published by the "New York Times," stated that Japs in the Swedish capital were making strenuous attempts to communicate to Allied representatives an offer of a negotiated peace.

The Japs, it was stated, were ready to surrender all the areas held by them in Asia, including Manchuria.

An Allied fleet, including two battleships, was reported by Tokyo to be approaching Balikpapan, the rich oil centre on the east coast of Borneo, opposite Brunei and where the Australians are fighting.

Another force of cruisers and destroyers, "presumably British," was reported by Tokyo to be approaching the straits between the Japanese home islands of Kyushu and Honshu.

Italy Offers
Factories To Allies

ATTEMPTS by leading Italian industrialists to dispose of the more important Northern Italian industries to Britain and America are reported in Rome.

They fear the spread of Communism throughout Italy. Industrialists also feel that this is the only way to obtain capital and materials to get factories.

The Fiat motor-car works are one of the first to be offered to Britain and America. So far there has been no offer received.

Quilings Open
Up Mass Graves

Five mass graves, "discovered" near Gardonea, a small town about 30 miles north of Oslo, are being opened for the terms of peace, General Marshall, U.S. Army Chief of Staff, said today.

He was giving testimony before the Select Committee on post-war military training in the House of Representatives.

General Marshall said: "It is clear to me that, whatever the terms of peace, the fundamental basis of our defence must be universal military training."

A letter from Admiral Chester Nimitz, Commander in Chief of the U.S. Navy, declared that "compulsory peace-time military training is imperative for the U.S."

Weather Forecast
Warm in the South; cooler elsewhere. Rainfall slight in the South; moderate in the North.

Threat To Return Stirs Crisis
Leopold Causes Government To Quit

By SAM HALES B.U.P. Correspondent

Brussels, Saturday.

THE Acker Cabinet, unwilling to take the responsibility for what may result, has resigned, it was officially announced here today. After a special Cabinet meeting this communique was issued.

The Prime Minister has informed the Cabinet that the King intends to return to Belgium in the near future. The Government cannot undertake the responsibility for the political events which will inevitably take place in this country as soon as the King returns.

"Under these circumstances, it has handed its resignation to the Regent, pointing out that it will be impossible for the Government to carry on with current affairs as soon as the King is back in Belgium. These affairs necessarily include the maintenance of public order and political stability for what the King says."

The Government therefore strongly insists that the King form a Government before his return to Belgium.

It is considered unlikely that King Leopold will be able to form a new Cabinet from the Catholic Party leaders at the conferences in an effort to form a new Government before King Leopold returns.

Both houses of Parliament have been called to a special Common Session on Tuesday morning. It is learned that the royal palace has been evacuated in readiness to leave for Brussels. King Leopold will arrive by air, but is not expected tomorrow.

GENERAL STRIKE THREAT
If King Leopold returned, it is likely that the Government would refuse to take part in the Government. The Government would refuse to take part in the Government.

Charges of treachery were levelled against King Leopold. It was alleged that he had accepted the surrender without consulting the Government. The Government was accused of being a traitor.

After his capitulation King Leopold saved himself up to the Germans at Leuven. The King's detention he was reported to consider.

In 1941 the King, who had been a widower since 1935, married a woman of 18, a Belgian girl. His wife renounced her Belgian nationality and became a German citizen. The King's marriage was reported to be a scandal.

In Crippen's Cell

HAW-HAW ARRIVES AT BOW-STREET

WILLIAM ("HAW-HAW") JOYCE arrived at Bow-st. police station at 7 o'clock last night after being flown from Brussels to a London airport.

He has been lodged in the cell which was occupied by Crippen in 1918. His name is at the top of tomorrow's charge sheet at Bow-st., and the charge against him is treason.

No detailed evidence will be offered tomorrow and the police will ask for a remand.

Joyce reached Bow-st. in a closed police car which drew up in the station yard. A police officer ordered him and two others following him to get out of the car. He was wearing a blue suit and had a scar over the back of his head.

A second car drove up and outstayed were taken from it into the police station.

When Crippen's cell was being prepared for Joyce on Friday two officers occurred by the station, presumably for Joyce or his guards.

The Englishwoman who described herself as Joyce's wife was also seen from Brussels to London.

With her when the plane reached Croydon airport was a security officer, an armed policeman and an A.S. guard.

Mrs. Joyce had a suitcase as her only luggage. When her plane touched down at Croydon she hid her face in a handkerchief as she was hustled into an Army car. She was naked and was wearing a coat over what appeared to be a suit. She had silk stockings and moderately high-heeled shoes.

RAF Men Help
Belsen Survivors

RAF men quartered near Belsen have forgone much of their rations to help thousands of survivors of the concentration camps who are living in the barracks formerly occupied by the German training school.

They have given over half a million cigarettes, 1,200 bars of chocolate, large quantities of fruit and other necessities.

The gifts have meant a real hardship for the RAF men, many of whom are still living under canvas far from town amenities.

General Election Battle Flares Up

CHURCHILL'S OPPONENTS HITTING OUT

GENERAL Election broadsides were fired by the big guns of the political parties yesterday. Personalities and pleasantries entered freely into the nation-wide speeches.

'Laski Veto Was Totalitarianism'

NO graver issue has ever been raised in this country than that which is involved in Mr. Laski's original repudiation of the right of Mr. Attlee to use his discretion as a National Leader while representing Britain side by side with Mr. Churchill at the Three Power Conference," said Mr. Leslie Hore-Belisha at Devonport yesterday.

"The issue is, in fact, quite plainly totalitarianism versus parliamentary democracy," Mr. Hore-Belisha added.

"All over the world this alternative is being provided in one form or another to the people, and it is an issue here, although it can only be seen in half light, just as much as it is an issue elsewhere. It is a choice between two very different and very definitely contrasting systems."

"The fact that Mr. Laski, the chairman of the Labour Party, has also said that he is not in doubt that the existence of the monarchy makes the realisation of Socialism a peculiarly difficult adventure shows the direction in which the Socialist Party is tending."

"Mr. Attlee, of course, disapproves of this tendency and must be more pained than words can express. But he is just a one fish-bone in the line which the extremists are holding out in the hope of catching votes which will give them a majority."

"Let Britain ponder the significance of the Laski-Attlee controversy. It is true that it is an internal controversy within the Labour Party, but it affects vitally the future destinies of Britain."

Imperative For Attlee To Go!

PROFESSOR HAROLD LASKI, Labour Party chairman, whose statement that Mr. Attlee could not be expected to resign in the event of a general election, caused a storm of protest at the conference between Mr. Churchill and Mr. Attlee, returned to the subject in a speech at Derby yesterday.

Professor Laski said he thought it imperative for Mr. Attlee to go to Berlin in the special circumstances.

But he was glad to think that the sole responsibility for decisions there would be that of the Churchill Government, for he was unable to believe that the Tory Party either understood what was essential to an enduring peace, or would pay the price that was essential to organise its necessary institutions.

Holiday Rush Breaks Up Families

Families who had set out from London to travel to Torquay yesterday were separated by the holiday rush at Paddington, and arrived at their destination at different times.

Traffic was the heaviest for many years. Expresses arrived in the morning and extra trains were packed. Torquay and Paignton stations were crowded with holiday folk, had to deal with queues of visitors.

Most of the controversy swirled around the person and pronouncements of the Prime Minister, though Mr. Brendan Bracken (who spoke on the wireless on Friday night), Mr. Attlee, and Mr. Laski (chairman of the Labour Party), ran him close in the cut-and-thrust. Here are some specimens—

MR. ARTHUR GREENWOOD (at Wakefield): Mr. Churchill's talk of creating a British Gestapo was just intended to frighten the masses. If Mr. Churchill regarded Sir Ernest Morrison as a potential Gestapo leader he would not have let him have his training at the Home Office.

MR. COL. ELEANOR STANLEY (at Kendal): Electors have to decide whether foreign policy is to be continued by Churchill or Eden, by Attlee, and as they say in the sporting world of A. N. Other, at the Big Three conference...

MR. SIR WILLIAM BEVERIDGE (at Chester): There were two Churchill's in the last election of 1940... and the political party politician who did not mind what he said to the public.

MR. SHINWELL (at Southampton): Mr. Churchill's over and Mr. Brendan Bracken is unemployed, perhaps the B.C.C. will never be able to enter the public with some funny stories.

MR. NOEL-BAKER (on the wireless): Mr. Churchill once remarked that the use of the word "Gestapo" was a mistake. It is vital that you should recall this history when you want a Tory majority in the House of Commons for the next five years.

MR. ERNEST BEVIN (at Sneyton): What you are asked to do is to support a man who is at war but who is going to win the peace, and the country and the people are going to live under for many years to come.

I give you my pledge on becoming the Labour Party, that we will not merely build a machine and not merely make a treaty between the two great powers, but we will build a machine which will put the spirit behind it to make it effective.

I don't think the candidate should pay over one copper, hope the field will soon be opened to those who have no financial backing."

'Labour Inherits L.I.G. Tradition'

MR. HERBERT MORRISON yesterday that the Labour Party in North Wales had inherited the pure traditions of Lloyd George, the great Liberal and Radical leader.

"Our outlook," he said, "is in so many respects the outlook on public affairs of which Lloyd George was such a distinguished champion."

"They cannot possibly continue the Lloyd George tradition by voting Tory, and if I may be so daring, I would say that Labour not effectively carry on that tradition by offering either Liberal or Liberal National."

"Wales, with the rest of Great Britain, is faced with this situation. The choice is between a Tory Government and a Labour Government—the latter a Tory Government representing progress and the public interest."

"There is no other effective choice. It is important that the Labour Party shall have a clear and adequate working majority in the new House of Commons."

MANY GERMAN FREED
Large number of Germans have been released from civil prisons in Western Germany following the revoking of their cases by the Allied Military Government.

New York Radio (quoted by Reuter) said yesterday.

● This is the saga of two brave Polish women soldiers.

● Each has been decorated with the V.C. of her country.

● And here is told how they outwitted the Huns for full five years.

● Two women, who for five long years successfully piloted their ways against the might and high organisation of the Gestapo, and for their work have been decorated with the highest military award their country can bestow—the Virtuti Militari, the Polish V.C.—have just arrived in London.

They are Major Janina Karas, formerly Chief Liaison Officer of the Polish Home Army, and the underground movement, and Major Wanda Lenar, who commanded the anti-Nazi sabotage organisation of Poland.

For special work Wanda Lenar was awarded the 100 stars, each worth to the ratee a platoon of poison for use if necessary.

On one occasion it was vital that close contact should be arranged between Wanda's famous Karas and General Sikorski, then head of the Polish Government in London.

Moreover, it was imperative that the contact should take place on the Continent. In this matter Major Lenar and Major Karas were working closely together.

General Sikorski arrived at the appointed place to await Bor's messenger," said Janina Karas. "General Bor sent five of these messengers."

On one occasion they were captured. All were tortured and all were killed. The bodies were buried in the ground. It was a woman.

Between them, these two women, who had been trained in sabotage were responsible for saving thousands of prisoners of war, and extremely scarce Nazi petrol.

Nothing went wrong. This was done by the simple but effective method of adding to it a little sugar.

Extensive damage to factories producing precision instruments, as well as to the stores of the finished article, and wholesale wrecking in every conceivable way that would hinder the enemy continued without a serious dislocation from 1939 until the Warsaw rising.

Indeed, so great was the havoc wrought by these women that the Germans were compelled to maintain more than a whole army group in a futile endeavour to counteract their activities.

Then, soon after the Warsaw rising, the two women, who had been trained in sabotage were responsible for saving thousands of prisoners of war, and extremely scarce Nazi petrol.

Gracie has issued an appeal for the return of the brooch, make-up and other articles, and the thief can keep the rest of the jewellery if he needs them.

SOLDIER'S PERSECUTION COMPLEX
When Private F. Buckle of the Canadian Army Service Corps, was accused at a Borden County court martial, yesterday, of being absent without leave and occupying a room, it was said he had developed a persecution complex following injury that placed him in a "floating category."

The commanding officer and the medical officer had tried to get at him and became convinced, with some idea, to escape from the Army, and the defending counsel said he was a "floating category."

He deserted, and was arrested after 296 days' absence. He was in plain clothes and occupying from the cells at Westminster, he was held for another 430 days.

Sentence will be promulgated.

They are Major Janina Karas, formerly Chief Liaison Officer of the Polish Home Army, and the underground movement, and Major Wanda Lenar, who commanded the anti-Nazi sabotage organisation of Poland.

For special work Wanda Lenar was awarded the 100 stars, each worth to the ratee a platoon of poison for use if necessary.

On one occasion it was vital that close contact should be arranged between Wanda's famous Karas and General Sikorski, then head of the Polish Government in London.

Moreover, it was imperative that the contact should take place on the Continent. In this matter Major Lenar and Major Karas were working closely together.

General Sikorski arrived at the appointed place to await Bor's messenger," said Janina Karas. "General Bor sent five of these messengers."

On one occasion they were captured. All were tortured and all were killed. The bodies were buried in the ground. It was a woman.

Between them, these two women, who had been trained in sabotage were responsible for saving thousands of prisoners of war, and extremely scarce Nazi petrol.

Nothing went wrong. This was done by the simple but effective method of adding to it a little sugar.

Extensive damage to factories producing precision instruments, as well as to the stores of the finished article, and wholesale wrecking in every conceivable way that would hinder the enemy continued without a serious dislocation from 1939 until the Warsaw rising.

Indeed, so great was the havoc wrought by these women that the Germans were compelled to maintain more than a whole army group in a futile endeavour to counteract their activities.

Then, soon after the Warsaw rising, the two women, who had been trained in sabotage were responsible for saving thousands of prisoners of war, and extremely scarce Nazi petrol.

Gracie has issued an appeal for the return of the brooch, make-up and other articles, and the thief can keep the rest of the jewellery if he needs them.

SOLDIER'S PERSECUTION COMPLEX
When Private F. Buckle of the Canadian Army Service Corps, was accused at a Borden County court martial, yesterday, of being absent without leave and occupying a room, it was said he had developed a persecution complex following injury that placed him in a "floating category."

The commanding officer and the medical officer had tried to get at him and became convinced, with some idea, to escape from the Army, and the defending counsel said he was a "floating category."

He deserted, and was arrested after 296 days' absence. He was in plain clothes and occupying from the cells at Westminster, he was held for another 430 days.

Sentence will be promulgated.

● This is the saga of two brave Polish women soldiers.

● Each has been decorated with the V.C. of her country.

● And here is told how they outwitted the Huns for full five years.

● Two women, who for five long years successfully piloted their ways against the might and high organisation of the Gestapo, and for their work have been decorated with the highest military award their country can bestow—the Virtuti Militari, the Polish V.C.—have just arrived in London.

This Was Loser, Too!

Wives in Court
I JUMPED from the frying-pan into the fire, from a home where quarrelling went on incessantly to a game where peace never reigneth.

We play the game of catch-at-odd-can. I have to meet my husband at the factory gates to make sure he is alive.

My husband and his employers differ on what he is doing.

My husband likes to have the gentleman by his side, not drinking his whisky.

The longer I live with my husband, the more sure I am that man descended from the monkey.

And Husbands
When I told my wife I was to go to a party she said: "Why not talk in simpler language? You are deep in thought?"

When my mother-in-law said I had married "a chip of the old block," I couldn't help thinking how fortunate I did not marry the whole block!

OYSTERS FOR P.M.

Six dozen oysters for Mr. Churchill on their way by plane from Australia, Melbourne Radio reported last night. They are expected to reach London tomorrow.

The President of the Melbourne Press Community is the one who has been asked to replace those lost in transit in the case of the late Sir Ronald Cross, British High Commissioner in Manila. He is expected to be in Manila in a few days.

Where should the sun be when you snap?

Try snapping with the sun at your side, as in the diagram, instead of directly behind you. Side lighting gives more natural shadow effects and avoids the appearance. Be careful though not to let the sun shine into the lens.

By the way, avoid loading your camera in bright sunlight. Good film is very sensitive—careless loading can easily spoil the spot.
